I would like to make a report about national museums and galleries. The given charts demonstrate visits to the English ones.

We can clearly see that attendance to most of these museums and galleries rises every year and the most popular places nowadays are the British Museum and the National Gallery.

Drawing on the statistics, I can say that there is a big difference in numbers of visits to different museums in 2014 and rates from 1,6 mln people at the Science Museum to 5,6 mln people at the British Museum. It is probably because there are not such many people who are interested in science.

The other thing I must mention is that the attendance to the National History Museum and the Science Museum fell from 3,4 to 1,6 mln people and from 3,8 to 1,3 mln people respectively. It can be possibly explained with small advertising.

I recommend to make bright adverts which capture people's eyes and appeal to your best expositions. Moreover, make sales for some groups of people, such as the disabled, or on special days, such as national holidays.

Summing it up, I must say that the attendance to English national museums and galleries has changed in last four years and the tendencies are positive.
